Financial Information:

Students pursuing a graduate degree or certificate at TCNJ may be eligible for some type of student financial assistance, including, but not limited to, student loans and assistantships. Graduate students must follow the same procedures as undergraduates in applying for federal loan assistance. Interested students should contact the Office of Student Financial Assistance for information about aid sources. For more information, and the application for aid, see <http://financialaid.pages.tcnj.edu/about/apply-for-financial-aid/>. For information on limited, competitive Graduate Assistantships, see <http://graduate.pages.tcnj.edu/graduate-assistantships/>.

Students who have not yet matriculated into their program of study are not eligible to receive federal or TCNJ funding. Graduate students must be enrolled in at least five (5) credit hours at the 500 level or above in order to be eligible for student loan assistance, and for TCNJ to certify enrollment for a loan repayment deferment.

For current tuition and fee tables, see <http://studentaccounts.pages.tcnj.edu/tuition-fees/>.
